DEATH ENDS LIFE OF R. R. BUILDER

JAMES J. HILL AMERICA'S GREAT
PIONEER R. R. BUILDER CALLED.

DEVELOPED GREAT N. W.

Was an Humble Laborer in Early Days, Rose to Position of Great Financier.

St. Paul, May 29.—James J. Hill, railroad builder, capitalist and the most widely known figure of the northwest, died at his home here at 9:30 this morning as the result of infection due to bowel trouble. Mr. Hill was unconscious for nearly 12 hours before he died. Two physicians together with the immediate members of the Hill family were at his bedside.

James J. Hill discovered "the breadbasket of the world" in the Great Northwest; he led in its development from a wilderness into what now comprises six wealthy states dotted with 400,000 farms; and he blazed a trail for transportation which reached eventually from Buffalo to Asia, with a total mileage of rail and steamship facilities that would nearly girdle the earth.

That but roughly spans the story of his achievement.

Near Guelph, in Ontario, where James J. (erome) Hill was born in 1838, the son of an Irish-Canadian farmer who died when the boy was 15, there stands a tree stump labeled: "The last tree chopped by James J. Hill."

It marked the lad's resolution, to go to the United States. He had been prompted by an odd incident. According to the story that is told, a strange traveler had stopped at the Hill farm to take dinner, and left his horse at the gate. Young Hill saw the animal was tired and carried it a pail of water. The stranger was pleased with the lad's thoughtfulness, and as he drove off he tossed him a newspaper from the United States, and called out gravely:

"Go there, young man. That country needs youngsters of your spirit." Hill read the paper carefully. It contained glowing accounts of opportunities in the States. He resolved to investigate for himself. It was the next morning that he chopped his last tree.

As a mere roustabout lad of 18, he toured from Maine to Minnesota. When in 1856, he disembarked from a Mississippi river packet at St. Paul that place was a frontier town of 5,000 inhabitants. At the sign of W. J. Bass and Co., agents for the Dubuque and St. Paul Packet Company, he found a job as both stevedore and clerk.

In the fifteen years that followed he seized every opportunity to study the whole problem of river transportation. He gathered no end of experience and a little capital with which he launched his own firm of Hill, Griss and Co., which promptly displayed its initiative by bringing the first load of coal that had ever been seen in that section into St. Paul. Two years later, with a flatbottomed steamer he established the first regular communication with St. Paul and the Manitoba ports of the fertile Red River valley.

At about that time St. Paul was having its first experiment in railroad building. Eighty miles had been laid to St. Cloud, 316 miles to Breckenridge, both of which terminals were at the southern end of the Red River Valley, ended in that same indefinite spot. This venture ran up a debt of $33,000,000 and collapsed with its only assets being "a few streaks of rust and a right of way."

Hill had had sufficient success in the region to be seized with a consuming desire to purchase the defunct property. After five years of financial dickerings, including the sale of all his other interests, which netted a fortune of $100,000, he and a syndicate of three others—Sir Donald A. Smith, George Stephen, and Norman W. Kittson—obtained the object of this desire.

The St. Paul, Minnesota and Manitoba railway was formed to operate the property, with Hill as general manager. When in 1883 Mr. Hill was elected president he undertook the extension of the road from its Dakota and Minnesota homestead to the Pacific ocean. He was confronted by three great competitors to the south, each of which had received big bonuses as government aid, whereas the "Manitoba" or the Great Northern, as it came to be known, did not have a dollar of government subsidy or an acre of grant to forward its progress from the Minnesota boundary to the sea.

In this light, Hill's plan was widely deemed pure folly, but he pressed it to conclusion by building and populating as he went. For several years he laid rails westward at the rate of a mile a day, and at a cost of $30,000 a mile, and as he went he left a trail of embryonic farms by the roadside.

With the line to Puget Sound once laid, he turned empire builder. He introduced the livestock industry into vast areas of bunch-grass plains, and developed them by importing blooded stock; he sent demonstration trains through the country with men who showed the people how to raise more wheat to the acre; he made an outlet for the grain by establishing a cheap rate by rail and steamship to Buffalo where he built great elevators; in fact for upwards of 20 years he left nothing in his power undone to develop the country where he had staked out his claim as the great common carrier.

But at the Pacific tide-water he was not satisfied, for he saw in the Orient still further opportunities. He organized a fleet of Pacific steamships for the commercial invasion of Japan and China. Japan at the time wanted steel rails, but proposed getting them from England, as the rates were less. It is related that when John W. Gates, the steel magnate of Chicago, came to Hill with the proposition of getting American rails to Japan, the latter replied:

"I will make you a rate of $8 a ton from Chicago or Pittsburg to Yokohama. If that is too much, I will carry it for the axle grease used on the locomotives and freight cars; and if you can't stand that, I will carry your freight for nothing."

At the $8 rate named, the American manufacturer was enabled to secure the Japanese contract.

The same tactics were adopted in

INDIANA TO SEND BIG FAIRBANKS DELEGATION

BUSINESS MEN ORGANIZING IN ALMOST EVERY STATE FOR ROOSEVELT.

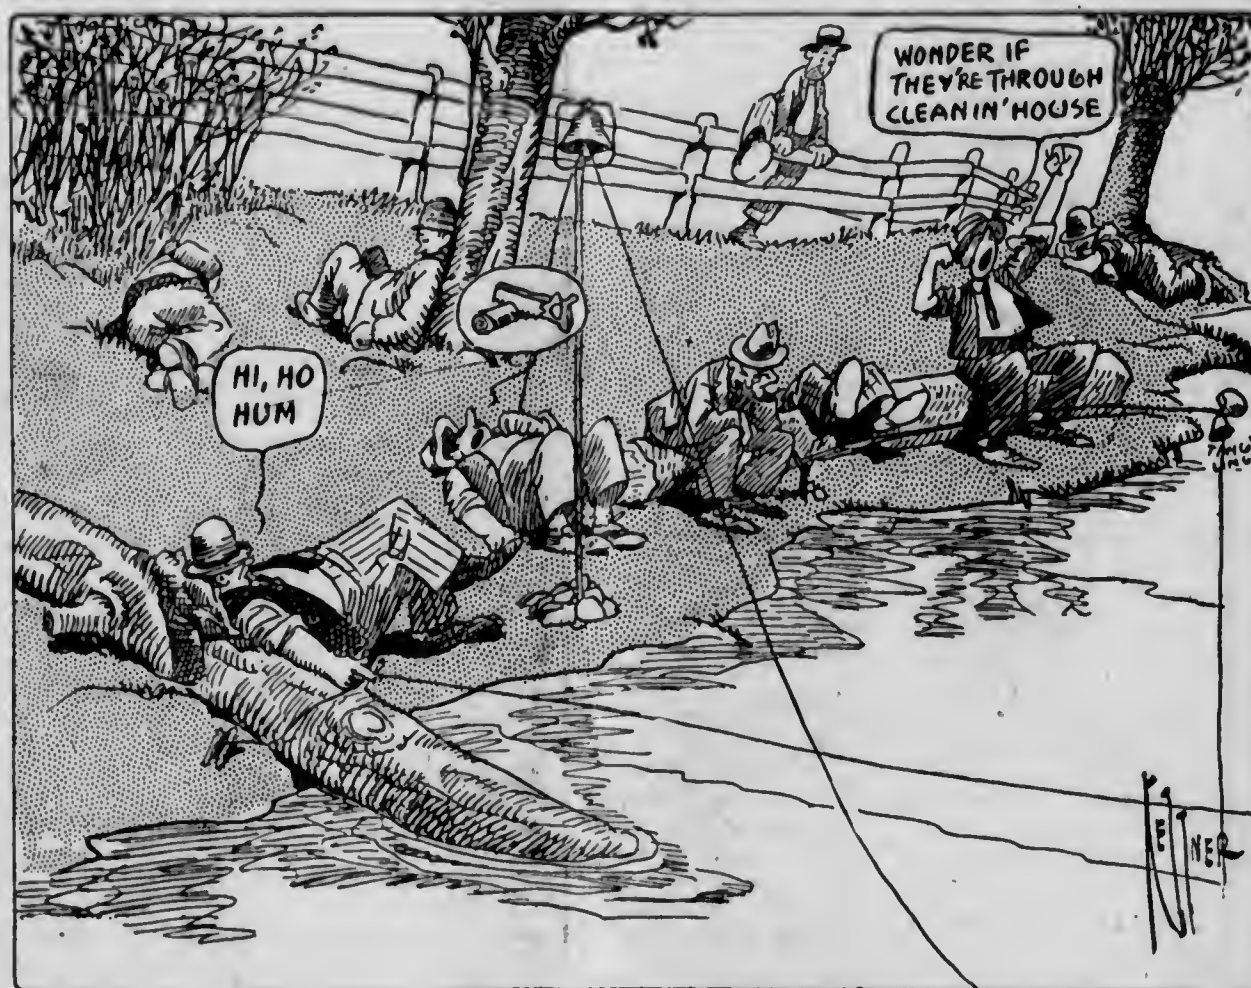

Chicago, May 30.—Completion of an organization of business men in every State in the Union pledged to use their influence to induce delegates to the Republican National Convention to vote for Theodore Roosevelt as the party's nominee for President, was announced today by Herbert L. Satterlee, acting manager of the Chicago Roosevelt headquarters. J. Ogden Armour is head of the Roosevelt Business Men's Organization in Illinois. The organization of the entire country by States was begun in New York eight days ago and is a purely volunteer movement, Mr. Satterlee explained.

It is expected the business men will render effective aid in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, Wisconsin and other States which have "favorite son" candidates for President in influencing delegates to support Roosevelt as a second choice in the convention.

Managers of the Hughes, Roosevelt, Fairbanks, Weeks and Root campaigns have turned their attention to the contests over delegates which will be heard by the Republican National Committee beginning June 1. There are forty contests involving the seats of sixty-two delegates.

The Marion Club, of Indianapolis, one of Indiana's leading Republican organizations, will come to Chicago on a special train next Monday to boom Fairbanks for President. There will be 1,000 members in the party, according to Ralph A. Lemcke and Charles W. Jewett, who were here today arranging for accommodations for the club. The organization was formed in 1888 to boom Benjamin Harrison for President at the Republican National Convention held in Chicago, and have not attended a national gathering of the party since.

PREPAREDNESS WARNING

Points out Country's Helplessness
Against Invasion by a Strong Foe.

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, came to Kansas City today and in several speeches sounded an appeal for preparedness, declaring vigorously for universal training based on universal service. In his principal address at Convention Hall, he departed from his set speech to say a facetious word about Mexico.

He carried his warning that there was a war peril in pacifism to all classes. His first message was to a group of children that had gathered to greet him. It was "prepare." A few moments later he spoke to a street crowd from the lobby of his hotel. He told them to prepare. At noon, a guest of the Commercial Club at luncheon he sounded another appeal.

Untoward Incidents.
"It has been said," he declared, "that the West is not interested, because it would not suffer from the war. I know that is a lie. I would shrink as from a plague from an American who would say that he does not care what happens to another American. Lofty words are poor companions if they cannot be translated into deeds."

There were several untoward incidents during Mr. Roosevelt's visit. A pocket knife was thrown at Col. Roosevelt's motor car during the Memorial day parade and it struck the arm of John W. McGrath, the former President's secretary, and fell to the running board of the car. McGrath tonight said there was no force behind the knife, and he believed some one had tossed it toward the car as a joke. Col. Roosevelt was told of the incident tonight, and afterward his secretary issued this statement:

"Col. Roosevelt regards the matter as an entirely trivial incident and feels that no weight should be attached to it."

Blade Three Inches Long.
The secretary was riding in the front seat of the motor car. Suddenly a knife with one blade measuring about three inches, struck his arm a glancing blow. The knife slipped to the ground, where Ernest Shell, a member of the American Legion, escorting the former President, picked it up and handed it to a policeman. The officer, whoever he was, had not reported the incident tonight, and the knife had not been recovered.

Another incident was the arrest in the lobby of the Hotel Muehlbach of a man who said his name was Edward McDaniel and his home at Tulsa, Okla. He declared he had business with Col. Roosevelt and tried to force his way past the police. The police still were holding the man tonight, but no charges had been placed against him.

Sees Danger of Attack.
Convention Hall was filled with a cheering crowd, each person waving a small flag when the Colonel entered. A portion of the hall had been reserved for the men of the Blue and the men of the Gray, and it was principally to them that Col. Roosevelt directed his remarks.

"We are told that we enjoy peace with Mexico," he said, in speaking of the republic to the south. "Eighteen years ago we had a war with Spain. The number of Americans killed in Mexico during this peace with Mexico surpassed the number of Americans killed by Spain in the war with Spain, and when this war was through it was through, whereas peace continues to rage with unabated violence along the Mexican border."

Coming to the question of an invasion of American shores by a foreign force, he declared that if an army half the size of that which attacked the Dardanelles should invade this country America would be at its mercy.

The former President declared that those who assert that there is no danger of the United States ever being attacked are either ignorant or forgetful of the multitude of examples which show how international conflicts arise.

New Europe After War.
"After this war we shall see a new Europe, energetically developing means of meeting new problems," said Col. Roosevelt.

"If under these circumstances, we take refuge in formulae dug out from the past, instead of developing these principles so far as to meet the future, we shall be as foolish as if we were to arm our soldiers with flintlocks and send them against machine guns."

"The time for flintlock theories of statesmanship is past."

Col. Roosevelt urged the nation to "beware of the false prophets"—professional pacifists, who, he declared, do not serve high ideals.

Two years ago these "false prophets" said there would never be another war, the Colonel said, adding, "Let us not be misled again." Even should peace come in Europe tomorrow, he declared, it ought not to affect American preparedness.

Urges Second Navy.
Pointing out that the Canal Zone, Alaska and various islands must be defended, Col. Roosevelt called attention to the transportation of Russian troops from Eastern Siberia to France and of the concentration of allied troops at the Dardanelles, as illustrations of the speed and safety with which great masses of soldiers can be moved from great distances. The Colonel again urged the "second navy of the world" and a regular army of 250,000 men with a proper reserve.

A system of universal training for universal service would be one of the biggest things ever done in this country to preserve our democratic institutions in spirit and in fact, the Col. declared. He again urged industrial preparedness.

EX-CONFEDERATE RAIDER IS DEAD

COL. MOSBY, FAMOUS SCOUT,
PASSES AWAY IN NATIONAL CAPITAL.

WAS INTREPID LEADER

Most Brilliant Exploit Was Capture of Gen. Stoughton at Fairfax
Courthouse.

Washington, May 30.—Col. John S. Mosby, one of the most famous Confederate raiders of the Civil War, died here today after a long illness. He was a native of Virginia and was 82 years old.

Col. Mosby's death, his physicians said, was due solely to old age, and he was conscious and interested in what was going on about him until an hour before he passed away.

Until six months ago, when he went into a sudden decline, he was a familiar sight about the streets of the capital, apparently vigorous despite his age. He will be buried at his ancestral home at Warrenton, Va., probably Thursday and some survivors of his noted command will be his pallbearers. His death on Memorial day was affecting to many.

It was said that he never took part in veterans' reunions because twenty-two years ago, when he attended one of his command at Alexandria, Va., he was so overcome with emotion he was unable to speak. Some sisters, a son and daughter survive him.

Col. Mosby, dated death over fifty years ago when at the head of a band of a few hundred Confederate raiders he rode up and down the Shenandoah Valley, capturing outposts, destroying supply trains, and cutting off means of communication. It has been estimated that he often neutralized the force of over 15,000 Federals in the valley.

Born in Powhatan county, Va., December 6, 1833, and graduated from the University of Virginia in 1852, he was practicing law in Bristol, Va., when the war broke out and he began his career in the Confederate army. He proved his daring with such effect that he became a scout for Gen. J. E. B. Stuart and led the celebrated raid around McClellan's army on the Chickabomby. In Richmond a year later he recruited an independent cavalry troop which became famous as Mosby's Partisan Rangers. They became night riders and the terror of the Federal troops.

Mosby's most brilliant exploit was the capture of Gen. Stoughton. On a March night in 1863 he, with thirty followers rode through the Federal army to Fairfax Courthouse, only fifteen miles from Washington, where Gen. Stoughton was asleep. Although surrounded by an army said to have been 17,000 strong, the Rangers calmly kidnapped the General, his staff and many sentries, and turned them over to the Confederate authorities at Culpeper without having lost a man.

Gen. Grant once later saved Mosby from hanging, and two foes of the battlefield became staunch friends. Mosby stumped the State of Virginia for Grant during his presidential campaign, and was rewarded with an appointment as Consul at Hongkong, a post which he held for seven years.

When he returned to the United States Mosby called on the surviving members of his Rangers and, to his astonishment, he found that a large percentage of them had become ministers. In parting their old Colonel said: "Well, boys, if you fight the devil like you fought the Yankees there will be something to record on Judgment day."

He next became special land agent for the Government in Colorado, and from 1904 to 1910 he was an attorney in the Department of Justice. The closing years of his life were spent in lecturing and authorship. His home lay across the Potomac, at Warrenton, Va., but he was often seen in Washington, his white hair and strong Roman features making him a picturesque figure on the streets or lecture platform. He had written "Mosby's War Reminiscences," "The Dawn of the Real South," and "Stuart's Cavalry Campaign." He was also known as a Greek scholar. "My military creed," he once declared, "is this: It is better to make a good run than a bad stand."

RETURNING SOLDIER'S WIFE KLOPES, SUICIDES

Dresden, May 29.—A sensational tragedy has caused great excitement in the aristocratic and fashionable circles of the Saxon capital. Capt. Kurt Von Herder, former adjutant of King Frederick August, returned to his home from the western front on a short furlough. Two hours later he was found dead with a bullet in his brain.

The captain was a great grandson of the famous German poet, Gottfried Herder, and possessed large means. Several years ago while in Berlin, he made the acquaintance of Miss Adfian, a school rider who appeared in a circus under the name of Adrienne von Holstein. He fell in love with the dashing beauty and became accepted suitor. Shortly afterward he was appointed adjutant to the King of Saxony.

In the fall of 1912 he obtained a long leave of absence and went to Cairo, where he married the circus rider.

When the officer informed the king of his "mesalliance" and asked forgiveness the ruler sanctioned his marriage by telegraph and asked him to remain in the service. On his return to Dresden the captain's beautiful wife was received with open arms by society and presented and honored at court.

Then the war broke out. The captain re-entered the army and went to the front. He fought in the east and west and earned the iron crosses of the second and first classes and the Saxon gold medal for bravery. During the first year of the war he exchanged letters with his wife every week. Last fall, the letters he received from home became scarce. His wife only sent a few cold lines three or four weeks and in February she stopped writing altogether.

Tormented by jealousy and dark suspicions the captain finally asked for a furlough of a few days and hastened home. When he arrived in Dresden he found the villa in charge of a single servant, who informed him that his wife had eloped after selling everything that she could turn into money. The captain then shot himself.

POLICY HOLDERS ARE TO BE SUED

ATTEMPT TO FORCE THEM TO PAY DEATH CLAIMS AGAINST OLD COMPANY.

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—A strenuous legal fight to determine whether the policyholders in the old Equity Life Insurance company, a Kentucky corporation, which went into the hands of a receiver about two years ago, may be compelled to make good losses in death claims amounting to about $101,000, seems inevitable from the preparations now being made in this city and in Frankfort by opposing sides in a controversy of great interest to insurance people.

The story of the present trouble is found in a letter written by J. W. Jeffers, receiver for the Equity Life Insurance company, with headquarters in Frankfort to all the policyholders, advising them that under a certain clause in the policies issued by the corporation before it failed, he has the right to levy an assessment of ten per cent against the policies in order to raise a fund large enough to pay off the death claims.

Receipt of this letter threw policyholders into a state of consternation and yesterday a conference was held, at which a special committee was appointed with instructions to employ counsel for the defense of the policyholders.

SUBMARINE CAPTAIN HAS NO EASY TIME

LIFE UNDER THE WAVES HARD FOR THE CREW IN TIME OF WAR.

Like Brer Rabbit, submarines find it necessary to "lie low and" say nothing at times. During these "lying-low" periods an under-sea boat sleeps the sleep of those who wear the crown. Peril is her bedfellow, and mischance is ever ready to creep in.

X-00 discovered this when she started for the surface to look around for an opportunity of doing business. Soon after they were "switched on" her motors began to run badly and a series of uncomfortable jerks gave the craft a "jumpy" motion.

"Something around the propellers, think, sir," reported an artificer. "Bad luck," exclaimed the commanding officer. "We'll try her again."

And they did. Backward and forward surged X-00 in a fruitless endeavor to free herself from the obstruction. The trouble grew worse, not better.

"No help for it. We must go up and have a look," reluctantly decided the "V. O."

Now, going up in such circumstance was like taking a blind plunge into danger. One could not tell what might come along, and a submarine awash with her screw "seized up" counts among the most helpless things afloat. However, the risk had to be taken, and X-00 presently heaved her long gray back out of the water, like a huge crippled fish, and lay upon the surface inert.

"Fouled a mine, sir" came from the men who had gone aft to investigate. Ugly news this. It brought a shade of anxiety to the "Co. O.'s" face. The mine must be cleared, or it would make an end to the boat. But the job was a tricky one. There was imminent risk of the mine exploding while being cut away, and that meant the funeral of X-00 and every one in her. Very deftly and cautiously the bluejackets went to work, and at last had the relief of seeing the hawser part and the mine go harmlessly away. Still, troubles were not at an end. One stretch of wire had become so tightly wound round the propeller that it could not be cleared, and the boat was consequently unable to steam.

What to do in this awkward predicament was the question. Looking around him, the "Co. O." espied a trawler in the distance, and he promptly decided his course of action.

"Get out the boat and fetch that chap and we'll make him give us a tow," said he to his "sub."

In a few minutes the submarine's little Berthon was making for the trawler. This was taking another risk, because in these days trawlers are not always the innocent craft they seem. And this particular one might be as inoffensive as she appeared outwardly or she might not. All this was in the minds of the "sub" and his men as they pulled toward the ship and in the minds of those left in X-00 as well. But the chance had to be taken.

However, luck was with those who ventured, as it so often is. The trawler proved to be only a harmless fishing craft—and German at that. So far from being desirous of destroying anything her only thought was for her own safety, and she tried to insure this by flight. But the "sub" and his boat's crew were too quick for her and they very soon had her heading for X-00, to which a hawser was run and the "tow" began.

You are not to suppose all this occurred as simply as it is narrated. Just picture the feelings of a German skipper obliged willy-nilly to convert his ship into a tug and take one of the hated English submarines back to the safety of its own harbors. Of all salvage jobs this was the last he would have undertaken willingly. Being a wise man, however, he accepted the inevitable and tried no tricks, while in their tolerant British fashion X-00's crew agreed that the trawler's men were "not bad chaps," and established fairly amicable relations with them. After the "tow" had been in progress some few hours a British destroyer hove in sight and flew up to investigate.

"Hullo, old chap, what's up with you?" quoth her Captain to X-00's commanding officer, who forthwith told him the whole story.

"Well, I'll pick you up now," said the Captain. "What about them?" indicating the Germans.

"They've behaved quite decently," and I'm inclined to let them go," replied the "Co. O."

The matter was debated, and finally it was decided that as a reward for their good behavior the Germans should be cast loose. "Make them sing us a song first," suggested the "sub." "Very well, tell him," and the "Co. O." nodded toward the skipper. "Muster your hands and sing us the 'Hymn of Hate' and then we'll let you go," said the "sub" to the skipper, who gasped with surprise at hearing this unexpected request.

"Wouldn't something else do? We know lots of songs we'd rather sing for you than the 'Hymn of Hate.' We don't hate you," he remarked naively.

"Oh, no," replied the "sub," who was enjoying the fun of the thing. "We must have the 'Hymn of Hate.' We've heard so much about it that we want to know what it sounds like."

Finding nothing else would do the skipper lined up his crew by the bridge and they solemnly sang the "Hymn of Hate" to their vastly amused audience. So delighted were the British tars that they insisted upon an encore, which the Germans gave—and then they were sent off with a cheer.

Bowel Complaints in India.
In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventive and cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere.

TAKES GIRL AS WIFE, DOES KIDNAPPER LOVER

MARRIES ABDUCTED GIRL AFTER HAVING BEEN ARRESTED, PLACED UNDER BOND.

The impatient, impetuous and impassioned courtship of Christofa Evola, 323 South Preston Street, who started Louisville Wednesday by his sensational abduction of Miss Lena Passantino, culminated yesterday when the lovers were married by the Rev. George W. Schuhmann, Clay and Walnut streets.

Evola, who was arrested on a charge of detaining a woman, following his sensational exploit, was released from jail at 11 o'clock yesterday morning under bond of $1,000. The bond was signed by Gasper Luntini.

His release followed conferences with friends of Miss Passantino, or Tino, as she is better known, who, it appears, was not averse to being kidnapped, after all.

Immediately after his release, Evola went to the Courthouse and obtained a marriage license. He was accompanied by John Passantino 612 East Market Street a brother of the girl, and his bondsman.

"Tino" Abbreviation.
The application for license developed the fact that Tino is an abbreviation of Passantino.

From friends of both families, it is learned that Evola's attentions were not unwelcome to Miss Passantino at any time. The breaking of the engagement about a year ago, it is said, was caused by objections of members of her family, instead of a change in the young woman's sentiments.—Louisville Herald.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce
TOM SPURRIER, of Grayson county, as a candidate for Congress, from the Fourth District, subject to the action of the Republican primary, Saturday, August 5, 1916.

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of A. D. KIRK for the Republican nomination for county attorney of Ohio county. Subject to the action of the Primary Election, Saturday, August 5, 1916.

"United we stand; divided we fall" doesn't apply to everything.

Nothing has been heard from Mexico since the National Guard was ordered out.

We have been confidentially tipped that when a man marries he takes his wife in his arms and his life in his hands.

With Ohio county making such efforts to come alone what would she do with a bunch of boosters behind pushing?

No, Adolphus, a legion hat will get you no better standing with a legion chicken than any other bird. You just as well go "on o Panama."

How can you tell when a bug goes buggy? The same way you learn that a nut is nutty, he said, as he cranked his Ford and sneaked away.

No jury could be found to try the fellow who wears his girl's picture on the dial of his wrist watch because all would have expressed an opinion.

Stories by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson continue to be printed. If we were rich and had married into the White House it would be darn little anyone would read from this pen.

We don't know how many days will elapse before another president will be nominated, but it will only be 5 days until the convention meets which will name the next President.

The editor of the "Heads Oddly Strung" column last week wished for a change from the war news on the front pages in the form of murder or scandal. He didn't have to wait long.

Dr. Warren Walte goes to the electric chair for the murder of his parents-in-law and judging from newspaper accounts the sentence is just. With deliberate unconcern he confessed to the poisoning of his wife's father and mother and coolly gave details of the crime.

Governor Stanley's State Board of Equalization at Frankfort has informed County Clerk Blankenship, that the assessment of Ohio County's farm lands and all mixed property has been increased 10 per cent for present year, and that the assessment of town lots has been increased 5 per cent. And the good old State grows deeper and deeper in debt every day.

We would like very much to know just what our good old Uncle Sam's troops are doing over in Mexico. What are they accomplishing? They do not appear to be scooping up many border raid bandits, but instead the State department puts in a lot of time haggling with Mexico's alleged representatives over their recall. We make this guess, and don't forget it either. Not long after the Chicago National convention has adjourned, the United States of America will send recall her punitive "puny" arms from the deserts of Mexico. This business of sending even this small army into Mexico is costing enormous sums of money, and so far as the average layman can see, is doing but little good. Our soldier boys should be turned loose or else be brought home, stationed along the border to keep those Mexican Devils out and protect the lives and property of our Bandit ridden border Citizens. At the present writing we fear that politics is more thought of by the dignitaries of the old time proud republic than is good for the border land.

THE OVERTURE.

The stage scenery for the great Chicago convention is being placed in order. Members of the orchestra are cleaning their instruments, packing cases and preparing to gather for the grand overture June 7. There was a little row in the orchestra four years ago, over the leadership, and the once powerful musical combination that for so many years caused notes of prosperity to ring forth goes to Chicago as two separate organizations.

What the audience wants to know, is will they strike up the same tune? For several months individual members have trained the ear to the same tuning fork. Not a good thing to tune with, we agree, but a splendid noise to tune against. There will be no discords, therefore, if the leaders select the same music; the G. O. P. S. O. (Symphony Orchestra) will come into its own and he ready to march at the head of a victorious party.

Let's open up with: "Back to Old Anzlon." The audience could resist. It wouldn't want to. With a mighty whoop we would rise to our feet and "Join in de couse," while from St. Louis would come the strains of "Don't Take My Darling Boy Away."

MAY 30TH, NOT OISER, ED.

Last Tuesday was the day set apart by the Nation for the decoration of the last resting place of our departed loved ones, the custom really originated with the Grand Army of the Republic and United Confederate Veterans. As we now recall, the G. A. R. was the first organization to urge that the day be made a national holiday.

Decoration day has come to mean almost nothing to the people of this community, we do not know of any public gathering, any exercises worth mentioning, compared with the meetings held some 25 years back. We feel that the custom should have been kept up, not withstanding the fact that the old heroes, both those who wore the blue and those who wore gray, have almost all answered the last bugle call, have been mustered out of this life of activities and into that of the great beyond.

Yes, when they were here in great numbers, we remember in our boyhood days, the patriotic inspiring meetings, parades, songs, recitations and speeches. We feel that the observation of the day could have been kept up by the younger generation with much profit to the Country in a patriotic way. These services not only breed a desire for peace, but instill patriotism as well. Too many of us are giving more thought to business and personal pleasure, so much so that we rarely think of those who fought and died upon the fields of honor, to say nothing of those who by reason of the great struggle have since been placed prematurely in the bosom of mother earth.

We are much inclined to the opinion that it is not to the credit of the younger generation that decoration day is not observed as it once was.

GERMAN STEAMER SUNK BY TORPEDO, SIX LIVES LOST

Berlin, May 30 (by wireless to Sayville).—Six men were lost in the attack by a submarine on the German steamer Kolga, sunk in the Baltic on May 17, according to a dispatch to the Overseas News Agency today from Lubeck, where the survivors of the steamer have arrived. The dispatch declares that the Kolga was shelled after she had stopped and that the submarine launched a torpedo which sank the steamer as the crew was about to lower the life boats.

"The enemy submarine opened fire without warning and continued firing in spite of the immediate stopping of the steamer.

"The submarine appeared suddenly at a distance of 400 meters from the Kolga," says the dispatch, "the submarine firing a shot, which went wide, upon which the steamer immediately stopped. Notwithstanding this, one minute later a second shot was fired, which destroyed the bridge. The crew, only half clad, rushed for the life boats, while the captain ran into the cabin in an effort to rescue the ship's papers.

"The submarine fired two more shots, both of which struck the steamer. One sailor was wounded. Immediately afterward came a torpedo, although it could be clearly observed from the submarine that the crew was about to launch the life boats. The torpedo caused the steamer to sink immediately, the captain, both the helmsmen, the cook and two sailors perishing.

"Furthermore, the torpedo was fired as the crew was about to enter the life boats, so that six out of nine men lost their lives."

REPUBLICANS IN PART VICTORIOUS

THIRTY SUBMARINES ADDED AFTER HARD FIGHT FOR BIGGER NAVY.

Washington, May 30.—Determined Republican efforts to enlarge the building program of the naval appropriation bill, as reported from the Naval Committee, resulted today in the adoption in the House, sitting as a committee of the whole, of an amendment increasing the number of submarines from twenty to fifty. Proposals to provide for six battle cruisers, instead of five, and to add two dreadnoughts and two scout cruisers to the program were defeated after a lively fight.

In order to finish consideration of the bill by the time fixed, 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, the House had a three-hour session today instead of recessing over Memorial Day, as usual.

So decisive were the votes against additional battle and scout cruisers that the bigger navy advocates virtually have decided to abandon the fight for them, but they still hope to get the two battleships. Another attempt will be made when the House returns to regular form on Friday.

Lost by Small Margin.

The battleship proposal was lost by the narrow margin of sixteen votes, 130 opposing and 114 favoring. Fourteen Democrats voted for the amendment and eight Republicans opposed it. Democrats supporting it were Lathlean, Coady and Price, Maryland; McAndrews, McDermott, Stone and Gallagher, Illinois; Lazaro and Dupre, Louisiana; O'Shaunessy, Rhode Island; Sherley, Kentucky; Tagne, Massachusetts; and Farley and Driscoll, New York. Republicans voting in the negative were Mondell, Wyoming; Nelson, Wisconsin; Cramton, Michigan; Good, Green, Haugen and Ramseyer, Iowa; and Ellsworth, Minnesota.

The vote on increasing the submarines was 114 to 104, seventeen Democrats voting for it and no Republicans opposing. The additional undersea boats would be of the coast defense type, seventeen of which already were provided for by the bill. Many members who have been urging that it would be better to expend money on submarines than on battleships rallied to the support of the amendment after voting against the battleship proposal.

Daniels Is Present.

A vote of 109 to 83 defeated the proposal to construct six battlecruisers instead of five, and the vote vote against the proposal to increase the number from four to six was so overwhelming that a rollcall was not sought.

In opposing the proposed increase of battle cruisers, Chairman Padgett, of the Naval Committee, insisted that the Republicans originally planned to demand five such craft, but upon learning that the majority report recommended this number, they decided to insist upon six. Closing of debate at that point prevented an answer from Representative Butler, who is in charge of the bill for the Republican side.

Secretary Daniels was alternately on the floor of the House and in the galleries thruout the session.

F. W. PIRTLE, PROMINENT CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

Mr. F. W. Pirtle, an aged and highly respected citizen, passed away at his home 4 miles East of Hartford on Thursday morning, June 1.

Mr. Pirtle was in his 81st year, having been born on March 17, 1836 in Washington County, Ky., where he lived until he was about 12 years old when he, with his parents, removed to this county; he has continuously resided here.

Mr. Pirtle first married Miss Elizabeth Renfrow, to which union were born twelve children, 6 boys and 6 girls, eleven of whom lived to reach the years of maturity. Those who survive are, Mrs. J. A. Duke, Hartford, J. E. Pirtle, Versailles, Ky., Mrs. Frank Hayes, Whitesville, Dr. J. R. Pirtle, Hartford, Mrs. R. D. Nelson, Bandana, Ky., Mrs. Dr. McDowell and Mrs. Dr. J. D. Stewart, Dundee, R. L. Pirtle, Owensboro, H. M. Pirtle, and Mrs. T. P. Carson, Hartford.

Mr. Pirtle's second marriage, to Mrs. Ann Felix, took place about 7 years ago, his former wife having died two or three years prior to that date. The latter Mrs. Pirtle, together with one brother of the deceased, A. R. Pirtle of Owensboro and two half brothers, T. C. and George Pirtle of this county also survive.

Mr. Pirtle led an active and useful life. He was a Pioneer Methodist, having united with that church at an early age but at time of his death he was a member of the Hartford, M. E. Church South. He was at all times much concerned with the welfare of the community, and was a strong supporter of co-operation. We feel that we can conscientiously say that his was a life well spent.

Funeral services will be held at home of the deceased at 10 o'clock, interment at Oak Wood, this morning.

HILLES PREDICTS

BRIEF PLATFORM

TALKS OF PROBABLE ATTITUDE OF ROOSEVELT TOWARD REPUBLICANS.

Chicago, May 29.—Chairman Chas. D. Hilles, of the Republican National Committee, expressed the opinion that the platform which will be adopted by the National Convention next month would be unusually brief, and deal only with the most vital public questions. From information obtained in talking with party leaders on the subject he believes the principal planks in the platform will include the following:

A statement on Americanism.

A statement on preparedness for adequate military and naval defense.

A declaration in favor of a protective tariff to be prepared by a non-partisan tariff commission created by Congress, with special attention to the needs of the industries of this country after the close of the European war.

A declaration in favor of a merchant marine.

A statement dealing with the alleged shortcomings of the Democratic national administration.

On the question of national woman suffrage, Chairman Hilles said there was a difference of opinion among the party leaders and he did not know what action the convention would take on the subject.

Hilless Refers to T. R.

In speaking of the probable action of the Progressive National Convention, to be held June 7 in Chicago, simultaneously with the Republican National Convention, Chairman Hilless said:

"I imagine everybody assumes that the Progressives will nominate Roosevelt for President. If the Republican convention adopts a straightforward, sincere, ringing declaration of the vital public questions now being discussed, and nominates a man clearly equal to the important tasks which will confront the next President, Roosevelt might not think there would be any need of his entering the field. But if the Republicans nominate a man who Mr. Roosevelt thinks is a misfortune, and adopts a platform which he regards as 'bunk,' he may feel so outraged as to run, and perhaps help re-elect President Wilson."

Chairman Hilless denied a report that the organization had ever thought of attempting to force the nomination of a candidate for President the first day of the convention.

ARMOUR PLATE PLANT WINS BY BIG MAJORITY IN HOUSE

Washington, May 31.—Amendments to the naval appropriation bill to provide for an $11,000,000 government armour plate plant, for $3,500,000 instead of $2,000,000 worth of aeroplanes, for 2,730 additional sailors, and a bonus system to encourage the speedy private construction of warships was adopted today by the House sitting as a committee of the whole.

Party lines were broken down on every vote. Twenty-three Republicans, and two Progressives joined the Democrats in voting for the armor plate proposal, the final vote being 165 to 91. Thirteen Democrats lined up with the Republicans on the additional aeroplane amendment, which carried 129 to 103. Other amendments were adopted overwhelmingly without roll calls.

The armor plate amendment, already passed as a separate bill in the senate, is centered largely around the question of whether the Bethlehem Steel Company, the largest private manufacturer of plate, had treated the government fairly.

The wall was cracked, plate glass front shattered, showcases broken and stock and office fixtures damaged. Maples saw no one about the building when awakened by the explosion.

The Nelson Creek Coal Company is one of the associations which looked out its employees over the wage dispute. The company store has been damaged and credit refused former employees. It was ordered to protect property during the strike. A few members of the Nelson Creek local protested to "mine" workers' headquarters here, but a majority of the local voted that the property must be protected. The explosion is attributed to a disgruntled individual. President Robert Pollock, of the United Mine Workers, this morning telephoned to Seebree for bloodhounds and will endeavor to find the guilty party. President Pollock does not believe any miner placed the bomb. J. H. Young, manager of the company store and President J. W. Bastin are on an automobile trip through the Bluegrass region.

FOLLOWING IS OHIO COUNTY'S FIRST AND OLDEST COURT ORDER.

July term, Tuesday 2nd., 1799.

Pursuant to an Act of Assembly passed at Frankfort the seventeenth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and ninety eight, entitled an act for erecting a new County out of the county of Hardin, to be called and known by the name of Ohio County, at the house of Robert Moseley in the said county on Tuesday the second day of July in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety nine, a Commission of the Peace from his excellency, James Garrard Esq., Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky bearing date the twenty second day of December in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety eight, appointing Jesse Cravens Stephen Cleaver, Harrison Taylor, David Glen, Robert Barnett and Christopher Jackson Esqrs., Justices of the Peace for said County was produced and read, and the several oaths required by law was by the said Jesse Cravens, first named in the Commission, administered to the said Stephen Cleaver, and then by the said Stephen Cleaver to the said Jesse Cravens and then by the said Jesse Cravens to the said Harrison Taylor, David Glen, Robert Barnett and Christopher Jackson. And thereupon a Commission from his said Excellency, bearing date at Frankfort, the 22nd., day of December in the year of Our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety eight, appointing Stephen Stateler Esq., Sheriff of the said County of Ohio was also produced and read, whereupon the said Stephen Stateler took the several oaths prescribed by law and together with Alexander Barnett, Ignatius Pigman and James Baird, his securities, entered into and acknowledged bonds conditioned as the law directs.

Whereupon William Rowan having produced a certificate as required by the constitution, was appointed Clerk of the said Court during good behavior and he having taken the oaths of fidelity and oath of office and together with Jesse Cravens, James Baird, John Douglas and John Rowan his securities, entered into bond in the penalty of ONE THOUSAND POUNDS, conditioned as the law directs and then a court was held for the said County; Present Jesse Cravens, Stephen Cleaver, Harrison Taylor, David Glen, Robert Barnett and Christopher Jackson, Esquires. Ordered that court adjourn till tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

J. Cravens.
Thus the first County Court and therefore first county Government was established. Jesse Cravens Esq., by reason of being first named in the commission from the Governor was the chief Justice or rather held the position now occupied by the County Judge, as may be seen by the fact that he for some time signed all Court Orders.

The first Clerk of the County Court was appointed to serve during good behavior.

We have tried to copy the first County Court Order, word for word as recorded, thinking that it would be of general interest to readers of the Republican, as the first item ever recorded in the County.

STRAY STREAKS.

(By Fluke McFluke.)

We understand that the Editor of this sheet started to Elkton, Ky., last Tuesday, but when first heard from he was in Owensboro and last heard from in Henderson; we lost sight of him altogether after he crossed the Ohio River.

The recent heavy rain made the ground too wet to work and Sam Keown slipped in home from Dawson Springs. Sam hasn't yet recovered his health and is likely to return, on dryer ground.

And just about the time we were talking about how well Gilmore was sticking to the farm work, he ups and decides that he needed to add to his education and off he goes to Bowling Green to enter school. This work stuff makes many a feller change his avocation and stamping ground as well.

Two of Hartford's Sportiest Sports went to Owensboro on last Saturday morning, the hour of their return is not very well known, as only a few people had gotten out of bed. They went in a Car called Jeffries, I think it was, don't know whether they returned in this automobile or a Ford.

These darned muddy rises, one right after another, are everlastingly ruining the fishing. We are considering moving to some Lake country where the water don't get muddled up with ever little shirt tail rainfall that comes along.

It is reported that Ed Moore and W. S. Tinsley missed Sunday School last sabbath. They made an excursion down the river and we have been told that they were seen by a friend of a friend of one of our friends, who told us, sneaking two oyster cans, some poles, a grubbing hoe and other paraphernalia into the boat. Wonder what they could have wanted with all that stuff on an ordinary Sunday excursion?

What makes these middle aged and up men sneak into a picture show with their hats well down over their mugs, sell for the front row seats when there is protracted meeting going on in town?

The old codgers above and heretofore mentioned ordinarily drop into a seat in the rear, or well back when they go to the movies and spend about half of their time gazing around at other men's wives. Some of these guys would look mighty good perched in the AMEN corners of a church during revivals, if very much out of place.

Man is a dicens of a queer animal. The K. P. Lodge meets every Tuesday night and Ed Barrass likewise pulls off his picture show on said same night. About 25 old cusses tell their wives that business of importance demands their presence at Lodge hall, yet the lodge doesn't hardly ever meet for lack of a quorum, so we have been told.

MURDER IS SLATED

Inquest Held, Murder Charged in Unheard of Manner.

Hartford City, Ind., May 30.—Coroner Charles Rutledge filed a report of murder with the county prosecutor today after he held an inquest into the death of Geraldine Stout, 8 years old, who while riding in an automobile yesterday with her parents, Dr. C. E. Stout and Mrs. Stout, was struck and killed by a bucket of corn hurled by Albert Thomas, 45 years old, a farmer, as he stepped aside to let the machine pass in the road.

Thomas was taken to Muncie last night and on to Michigan City today for safekeeping, as the feeling against him here and at Upland, the home of the Stouts, is great.

The grand jury, which convened today, also was expected to take up the investigation of the case at once.

Thomas, before being taken away, explained his act by saying that he was startled by the sudden appearance of the machine and threw up his hands accidentally letting the bucket fly into the machine. Members of the Stout party, however, assert that Thomas cursed them as he let go of the bucket.

Facts About the Tomato.

The tomato, the garden vegetable that is now so popular and so common in our gardens, was not always so. It was once feared, as it was considered poison. There was much prejudice against this vegetable and it took many years to remove it from superstition and make it popular as it is.

The tomato is a native of South America. It was known and cultivated by the natives of that country before the country was discovered. A description of Tournefort in 1700 would seem to show that some of the large, smooth varieties like Livingston's Stone were known fully 200 years ago.

The name "tomato," according to Tracy, is derived from the Aztec word "Xitomate" or "Zitotomate." The vegetable is still known as "tomate" in continental Europe.

Tracy states that the first mention he finds of the tomato in this country was in Virginia where it was grown for culinary purpose as early as 1781. A Frenchman in Philadelphia made most earnest efforts to get the people to use tomatoes as a food in 1788, but with very little success.

Being a native of that part of South America where climatic conditions are uniformly favorable for continuous growth through the season, the tomato has become very susceptible to extremes in cold or drought. It is said that when the plants are once injured slightly by unfavorable conditions they never overcome it fully, but may survive and produce fruit, though generally of inferior quality.

The tomato under our conditions in Texas and the Southwest, especially in the black land belt, has a tendency to produce vine or plant growth at the expense of fruit. To reduce this, acid phosphate and potash should be used as a fertilizer on such soils early in the season before the plants are set.

Good cultivation, staking and pruning are necessary for large, smooth, highly-flavored fruit. Where one has but a small patch an enormous yield may be made by taking pains with the plants.

One way to stake is to drive a stake down by the side of the plant and tie the plant to it with a cloth string. Another method is to drive two stakes one on each side of the plant and bind the plant to the two stakes. Some gardeners stake the rows by driving a few stakes on both sides of the rows and connecting them with wire or strong cords, thus holding the branches off the ground so the fruits will not rot.

In pruning remove all the large branches leaving but one main stem. Keep the plants balanced by pruning when young. Some pinch out the leaf buds not wanted, removing the laterals that are out of place, and if the fruit buds seem too numerous, thin them also. More data is needed as to pruning. Why not prune one plant and by its side leave one unpruned on several rows to note the difference? Even this would not be conclusive as the season this year might not be such as would prove that pruning or leaving alone would be best under ordinary conditions. But this is the way to test the matter under your conditions.

Indians as Corn Growers.

The fact is not often referred to, but it is important nevertheless, that we are greatly indebted to the Indians for one of our leading crops, Indian Corn. We are reminded by Clark Wissler, curator of anthropology in the Museum of Natural History, New York, that maize culture, by which is meant corn growing, "is a fine example of a borrowed culture-trait." Writing to the American Journal of Sociology, Wissler mentions many practices in corn growing now in use that have undergone very little change since we got them from the Indians.

One of these practices in corn culture is planting corn in hills. The Indians planted this way, dropping several kernels in a hill three or four feet apart and covering by hand. It is noticeable that this primitive method was used for hundreds of years and even now "hill planting" is the way on thousands of farms in this country, although the method of seeding has improved to make use of machinery.

The Indians were said to hoe the soil up and pull it around the plants. This was our method for years. Farmers now often throw the soil around the plants when the corn is laid-by. Experience and investigation have shown that this is poor culture, often detrimental but some are not ready to change to flat cultivation and a shallow soil mulch.

The practice of using a corn husker, it is said, originated with the Indians. They used a bone to husk, but our fore-fathers used an iron husking-pin. In earlier times when there were no huskers or a wood husker.

The Indians were the first to use the hoe.

of planting beans and squashes in the corn as companion crops. We have enlarged this idea as we have found that in addition to the greater yield from an acre of land some of these crops improve the soil—the legumes such as peas, beans, peanuts, etc. Fertilization by putting a fish under the hills of corn has been enlarged upon also, since we have learned the use of manure and fertilizer.

We still enjoy some of the Indian's ways of cooking corn. The Indian names as "hominy," "succataash" and roasting ears will not be lost from our literature. The Algonquin tribes it is said, prepared and stirred "mush" much like farmers' wives today. We eat lye-hominy, mush and enjoy roasting ears, many of us without thinking who gave us the custom.—Farm and Ranch.

Saving Irish Potatoes.

The land that is now in spring crop Irish potatoes may be planted in another garden or truck crop with fair expectations. One of the legumes such as snap beans, teparies, lima beans, cowpeas suitable for table use would be a good crop to follow the Irish potatoes.

Care should be taken in digging Irish potatoes. The tubers should be mature but had best be taken up promptly after they are ready to dig. The time to dig can be told readily by the tops' falling over and the foliage turning yellow as a result of maturity.

Of course the potato digger is the implement to use in harvesting Irish potatoes when one has a large crop like those who raise "spuds" for market. For the small patch in the garden a turn plow or a sweep may be ample. Digging with a grub hoe is hard work and few gardeners will enjoy it.

The tubers are generally taken to a cool place as soon as possible as the hot sun should not shine on them after they are dug. The tubers should be assorted, put in baskets and handled carefully. Bruised tubers will not keep.

The tubers should be put in a cool place and spread out so that they will not touch. Then if air-lacked lime be sprinkled over them there will be far less likelihood of rot developing. Notice the tubers occasionally and remove speckles that show indications of decay.—Farm and Ranch.

Ground Alfalfa For Hogs.

Ground Alfalfa is acceptable feed especially for the brood sow. Often considerable difficulty is experienced in getting the sow to eat enough alfalfa to make economical gains. It is fed in a rack.

A few years ago the Iowa station fed ear corn only to some gilts, while others received ear corn and alfalfa in a rack. The average weight of the pigs from sows receiving corn only was 1.74 pounds, while it was 2.25 pounds where alfalfa was allowed in the rack. The young gilts ate 1.11 pounds of alfalfa daily per head on the average. The strength of the pigs was manifestly in favor of the alfalfa lot, there being 89 per cent of very strong pigs farrowed as compared to 68 per cent where corn only was used. Charging the alfalfa at $10 a ton and corn at 50 cents a bushel the cost of the new born pigs in the corn-only lot was 41 cents and in the alfalfa lot 26 cents; the pigs were stronger even though made more cheaply.—Farmers Home Journal.

BLIND TIGER OPERATOR DRAWS RECORD FINE

Stanford, Ky., May 29.—So far as known the heaviest fine ever inflicted in a court in Kentucky for violation of the local option laws was assessed in the Lincoln Circuit Court today against Charles Reid, a white man of Milledgeville, in the western end of this county, who was handed $3,000 and costs by a jury for conducting a blind tiger. On a second case Reid got off light, the jury finding him only $100 and forty days in jail.

Reid proved so clever evidence to convict him could not be secured save when Uncle Sam got him last year for failing to take out a government license.

When the Rev. Enos Waggoner, Methodist pastor at Moreland, brought down a witness against Reid to go before the grand jury Reid's father, John Reid, caught the youth in an unguarded moment and spirited him away in a buggy. A warrant for the elder Reid was secured at once and Sheriff Weatherford deputized the Rev. Dr. Waggoner and the Rev. D. M. Walker, the Christian church pastor here, as special deputy sheriffs to arrest the elder Reid and bring back the witness. The latter proved too fleet of foot for them, however, but they brought back Reid, who was hauled into court immediately and fined $200.—Louisville Evening Post.

Hills of Humor.
Nurse.—The patient in room 8 is light-headed.
Doctor.—Delirious or blond?

A physician, while attending an obstetrical case, where the pay is not considered good, when asked, "Doctor, is the child marked in any way?" answers, "It has only one little mark about it, but you can easily remove that."

"What is that, doctor?"
"It is marked 'C. O. D.'"

"Witherspoon thought it was a good chance to get some medical aid without paying for it."

"How do you do this morning, Colonel?" asked Dr. Snover.

"Poorly, Doctor, poorly. For some time past I have been suffering from weakness. As you can see, I can hardly walk. What shall I take, Doctor?"

"Take a taxi," replied the Doctor, gruffly, as he strode off.

"Doctor," said he, "I'm a victim of insomnia. I can't sleep if there's the least noise, such as a cat on the back fence, for instance."

"This powder will be effective," replied the physician, after compounding a prescription.

"When do I take it, Doctor?"

"You don't take it. You give it to the cat in a little milk."

Patient.—Shall I have to give up beer, Doctor?

Doctor.—No, I shan't forbid it to you.

Patient.—It's extraordinary, Doctor, what confidence I have in you.—The Medical Plekwick.—Medical Journal.

Forethought.

People are learning that a little forethought often saves them big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Obtainable everywhere.

Smile Provokers.

"Woman," cried the big, burly husband, shaking his finger wildly, "I can read you like a book!"
"That may be," retorted the little wife, with a queer smile, "but you can't shut me up."—Stray Stories.

Marion was saying her prayers. "And please, God," she petitioned, "make Boston the capital of Vermont."

"Why, Marion," said her shocked mother, "what made you say that?"
Marion settled herself in bed. "Cause," she answered, "I made it that way in my zamination paper to-day, and I want it to be right."—Chicago Public.

Applicant: "No, ma'am, I could not work where there's children."
Madame: "But we advertised for a girl who understood children."
Applicant: "Oh, I understand 'em, ma'am. That's why I wouldn't work where they are."—Chicago Herald.

OHIO MEDICAL CO. LOOK FOR OUR COLUMBUS

STORIES FROM THE AMERICAN HISTORY

ABRAHAM LINCOLN WAS ONCE CHALLENGED TO A DUEL— CALLED OFF.

The code duello was restored to very generally in all the states of our country during the early part of the past century, and very frequently for what appears to have been merely a trivial offense. The State of Illinois was no exception, and many duels were fought in that State, the last fatal one occurring in February, 1819, between Alonzo C. Stuart and William Bennett, which resulted in the death of Stuart.

Abraham Lincoln, who later became President, was one of the victims in an absurd duel which resulted in little more than bluff. The origin of his difficulty was politics. In an article published in the Sagamo Journal of September 2, 1842, Mr. Lincoln made a bitter attack on some actions of the State officials relative to the collection of taxes.

The article was decidedly rough in language, and written in a jesting style apt to cut deep. Special reference was made to State Auditor Shields, who was held up to ridicule personally as well as officially. Mr. Shields, being of Irish blood, was very much aroused. Seeking the editor of the paper, he demanded the name of the anonymous writer of the objectionable article and it was given him.

Mr. Shields sent Mr. Lincoln a note bristling with the desire to fight. Finally Shields dispatched a formal challenge, naming Gen. Whiteside as his personal friend, to which Lincoln immediately replied with Dr. Merriam as his representative. The two friends met and secretly agreed upon some terms by which the hostile meeting should be avoided.

Mr. Lincoln had business that called him to Jacksonville, and before his departure he left a memorandum in which he explained his connection with the article in the Journal. If this was not satisfactory, a meeting could not be avoided, the arrangements of the fight were to be:

"First—Weapons, cavalry, broadswords of the largest size.

"Second—Position, a plank ten feet long and from nine to twelve inches broad, as a line between the contestants, neither to pass his foot over on forfeit of his life. Next a line drawn on the ground on either side and parallel with it, each at the distance of the whole length of the sword and three feet additional from the plank, each to fight in this limit on his own side of the board.

"Third—Time, on Thursday evening at 5 o'clock, if possible, but in no case to be at a greater distance than Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

"Fourth—Place, within three miles of Alton."

With our later knowledge of Abraham Lincoln's propensities, one is tempted to perceive a joke cropping out in the position thus gravely described for the combatants, for it looks as though both were thus placed safely out of harm's way, where they could heat the air with their trenchant blades forever and do no damage. But it might be well to remember in this connection the unusual length of Mr. Lincoln's arm, and feel some sympathy for his opponent.

However, Shields was determined to fight, and all parties concerned left for the supposed field of carnage. But peace was already hovering in the air above them. Outside friends, uniting with the distressed seconds, succeeded in harmonizing all difficulties, and the ridiculous affair was ended without the exchanging of a blow.

It was evident that Lincoln did not desire the death of his adversary, but did not intend to be materially injured himself. Lincoln felt keenly the stupidity of the whole affair, but thought he could not avoid the fight without degradation; while to Shields such a fracas was a delight.

The duel came to its end naturally. Shields allowed himself to be persuaded to withdraw his offensive challenge. Lincoln then made the explanation he had been ready to make from the beginning; avowing the one letter he had written, and saying that it had been printed solely for political effect, and without any intention of injuring Shields.

Lincoln's quarrel with Shields was his last personal encounter. In later years it became his duty to give an official reprimand to a young officer, who had been court-martialed for a quarrel with one of his associates. The reprimand was probably the gentlest on record:

"Quarrel not at all. No man resolved, to make the most of himself can spare time for personal contention. Still less can he afford to take the consequences including the vitiation of his temper and the loss of self-control. Better give your path to a dog than be bitten by him in contest."

ing for the right. Even killing the dog would not cure the bite."—Louisville Evening Post.

One winter evening in Dublin, when a water inspector was going round, he stopped at one of the mains in a bush street to turn off the water during some repairs. He had just applied the handle to the tap and begun turning when a somewhat unsteady hand was placed on his shoulder, and he was confronted by a man in evening clothes, who, judging by his tone and manner, had been imbibing much too freely.

"Ha, ha!" he cried, with a gleam of satisfaction in his eye. "So I've found you at last, have I? It's you that's turning the street round, is it?"—Everybody's.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging
Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave
Up in Despair. Husband
Came to Rescue.

Patron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in fits 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

DIMES, QUARTERS AND HALVES
TO BE IN NEW DESIGN
AFTER JULY 1.

Washington, May 30.—Dimes, quarters and half dollars of new design will be minted after July 1, Secretary McAdoo announced today. For the first time since 1891 a change will be effected in these pieces. The announcement disclosed that the half dollar has fallen practically into disuse and the new design was selected with hope of restoring it to more general circulation. It was indicated. Under the new coinage each piece will be of different design. The dollar and dime models were made by Adolph A. Weinman, and the quarter dollar by Herman A. MacNeil. Both are sculptors of note.

The face of the new half dollar bears a full length of Liberty, with a background of the American flag flying to the breeze. The Goddess is striding toward the dawn of a new day, carrying laurel and oak branches symbolic of civil and military glory. The reverse side shows an eagle perched high upon a mountain crag, wings unfolded. Growing from a rift in the rock is a sapling of mountain pine, symbolic of America. The design of the twenty-five-cent piece is intended to typify the awakening of the country to its own protection. Secretary McAdoo's announcement stated.

Liberty, a full-length figure, is shown stepping toward the country's gateway, bearing upraised a shield from which the covering is being drawn. The right hand bears an olive branch of peace. Above the head is the word "Liberty" and below the feet "1916." The reverse bears a figure of an eagle in full flight, wings extended, and the inscription "United States of America and E Pluribus Unum." Both the half dollar and the quarter bear the phrase "In God We Trust."

The design of the dime is simple. Liberty with a winged cap is shown on the obverse and on the reverse is a design of a bundle of rods and a battle axe, symbolic of unity, "wherein lies the nation's strength."

THOUGHT HE WAS ROCKING ROCKEFELLER'S HOME

New York, May 31.—Carrying a leather bag filled with stones Seabees R. Powdrbes, a wood carver of Yonkers, N. Y., stopped in front of the home of William K. Vanderbilt, on Fifth avenue today and began to hurl stones through the windows. A policeman arrested him as he was throwing the fourth stone.

The police said Powdrbes declared he believed he was throwing the stones at the home of John D. Rockefeller, whom he held responsible for the suffering of the poor.

When told it was Mr. Vanderbilt's house he had attacked, Powdrbes grinned and said "You police can't fool me. I know it's Rockefeller's house."

JUDGMENT FOR WOMAN AGAINST BANDIT VILLA

El Paso, Tex., May 31.—Francisco Villa, Mexican bandit, today is liable to Francisco Flores for $2,275, according to a verdict returned in the District Court here yesterday. Miss Flores, a Mexican woman, sued to recover that amount paid Villa in return for a promise that he would spare the life of her brother, sentenced to death by Villa on a charge of treason. Despite the payments of money Flores was executed in February, 1914. In filing her suit Miss Flores attached Villa's personal motor car, then in El Paso, and this was held as security pending the outcome of the suit.

Fiscal Court Rejects Bids.

The Fiscal Court of Ohio county with all members present, was in session yesterday to receive and consider bids for the construction of two concrete bridges on the Hartford and Ceralvo road and for the construction of proposed pike or macadamized road on the Hartford and Morgantown road. There being no bid which the Court felt justified in accepting, all were therefore rejected. We have been told that the Court is seriously considering the construction of this road and these bridges by direct supervision.

LATEST WAR NEWS

Monday

Greece.—The Bulgarian invasion of Greek Macedonia has reached to Demir-Hissar and from that town forces of Bulgars are said to be making their way southeastward toward the Aegean seaport of Kavala, north-east of Saloniki. Unofficial estimates place the number of the invaders at 25,000. Along the Struma River the Greeks have evacuated the forts of Rupel, Dragotin, Spatovo and Kanevo to the Bulgars, without offering resistance.

Coincidental with the Bulgarian invasion comes a report that the rejuvenated Serbian army—the ancient enemy of the Bulgars—has landed at Saloniki to re-enforce the British and French troops already there. This force has been variously estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000 officers and men.

France.—Occupation by the French of portions of three craters formed by the explosion of German mines in the Argonne is announced by Paris. Regarding the battle for Verdun, it reports a lively artillery duel to the west of the Meuse. In Upper Alsace the French checked two attempts of the Germans to advance near Altkirch.

Tuesday

Italy.—Italians are holding back Austrians from further advances in the Tyrol and inflicting heavy losses on them by counter attacks.

France.—Germans have captured 300 meters of trenches from the French near the village of Cumieres, on the Meuse. Fighting of the greatest intensity is reported around Hill 340 and between Cumieres and Le Mort Homme.

England.—Since the commencement of the war 550 persons have been killed and 1,616 injured in the British Isles by German attacks by sea and air, according to a statement made in Parliament by the British Home Secretary.

Wednesday

France.—Two miles of French lines, from the southern ridge of Le Mort Homme to the Cumieres village, have been taken, according to Berlin reports partly confirmed by Paris, and the Germans have pressed forward in the Thlaumont wood, north-east of Verdun. Berlin says 1,313 prisoners have been taken.

Italy.—The Austrians have begun another attack in the Posina region. To the south they were repulsed after a desperate struggle, according to Rome.

Russia.—An offensive northeast of Augustinof resulted in the Teatons being driven back to their trenches.

Greek Macedonia.—The Germans are with the Bulgarians in an advance which, according to Berlin, is made as a protection against a surprise attack being planned.

Thursday

Mexico.—Immediate withdrawal of the American expeditionary force in Mexico is asked in the latest note from Gen. Carranza, handed to Secretary Lansing yesterday. The document declares that two hordes of American troops have entered Mexico without the consent of the de facto Government, and this action cannot be considered other than invasion, and that the professed friendly attitude of the American Government has been contradicted by these acts. It is also alleged that much of the trouble which has beset the Constitutionalists is due to the work of unpunished plotters who have operated in the United States, and the virtual embargo on shipments of munitions into Mexico.

France.—French troops at Le Mort Homme, northwest of Verdun, after a spirited attack, have captured a strongly organized position on the slopes, capturing 225 prisoners and seven machine guns. The town of Avocourt and Hill 204 are under heavy bombardment.

Italy.—Austrians have taken additional points of vantage from the Italians. Austrians claim to have captured 31,082 Italians and 298 cannon during the present offensive.

Russia.—Petrograd announces that invaders were ejected after they had captured a Russian position at Diarbekr.

Why We Are Opposing A Government Armor Plant

To the People:

Some people say that the very fact that the Bethlehem Steel Company is so aggressively fighting the proposal to build a Government armor plant is conclusive proof that the Company is seeking to assure for itself the "vast profits" derived from private manufacture.

The fact is that armor making is the least profitable feature of steel manufacture.

The reason we oppose a Government plant is very simple. It is this:

Even though there is but little profit in the making of armor, we have invested over $7,000,000 in our armor plant;

That plant is useless for any other purpose; if a Government plant is built the usefulness of our plant is destroyed.

It would be good business for us to make armor for the Government at any price over and above the actual shop cost, RATHER THAN SACRIFICE OUR ENTIRE INVESTMENT.

We do not seek to save big profits; our purpose is very frankly to save our armor plant—itsself built solely for the use of the Government—from going to the scrap heap.

To do that, we are prepared to agree for any period to any terms of manufacture which the Federal Trade Commission shall say absolutely protects the Government of the United States.

West Kentucky Farmers Praise Liquid Stock Feed

You Can Do as Well or Better.
Beats Feeding Corn Ten to One.

Mr. Yewell, of Owensboro, says:

Have been feeding liquid stock feed to hogs for 12 months. Never fed anything at same price equal to one-tenth its feed value. In one month saved $60.28 on 17 head of hogs. Greatest boon to Dayless County farmers in 20 years.—E. H. Yewell, R. F. D. No. 2.

Dr. Keene, of Owensboro, says:

Best investment I ever made was in feeding your liquid concentrated stock feed. Fattened hogs at less than one-half of what it would cost me to feed corn. Pity our farmers did not get on to it before. If anybody doubts me let him write me.—R. P. Keene.

Mr. Dean, of Wintman, says:

My hogs made gain of 1,950 pounds after eating 122 barrels of your concentrated liquid feed. Produced pork at less than 3c a pound. Accept my thanks.—W. S. Dean.

Mr. Dutschke, of Holt, says:

Your concentrated liquid hog feed is a money-making proposition at the present price of hogs. Send me 150 barrels more at once.—J. F. Dutschke.

Mr. Strong, of Owensboro, says:

Have been using your liquid stock feed as hog food for some time. Found it perfectly satisfactory.—R. T. Strong, R. F. D. No. 5.

Write us for full particulars about this truly wonderful feed for your hogs getting American wheat and flour into Japan and China, where rice was the staple food.

His faith in the far east was rewarded as liberally as that in the northwest. It is estimated that the Pacific fleet now carries nearly $50,000,000 worth of products to the Orient every year.

While Mr. Hill built up for himself and his associates an immense fortune, he also helped to create for the settlers along his lines a wealth of over five billion dollars in real property, which is represented by the value of the 400,000 farms and their 65,000,000 acres of improved land.

Upon his retirement at 69, the "streak of rust" he had bought 30 years before, had expanded to more than 6,000 miles and it was earning gross profits of more than $68,000,000 a year, and carrying 15,000,000 tons of freight annually. He still retained a hand in the Great Northern's policy as chairman of the board of directors, while his son Louis, who had worked up from the humblest position of his father's railroad, became president.

The secret of the Hill success was no secret at all, according to Mr. Hill, and he had no new recipes to offer. "The man with the big opportunity today," he said, "is the man in the ranks." But the secret of failure he frequently declared to be extravagance. He regarded this as a national tendency, against which he strug-ly set himself, particularly as concerned the natural resources.

During his active supervision of the Great Northern system, Mr. Hill oversaw almost every detail, to the wonder of all employees with whom he came in contact. A fugitive instance of his recognition in his own country is the story of a tourist who declares that there are alloted in the Swedish section of the northwest upwards of 10,000 different stories in Swedish dialect with "Yem Heli" as the centerpiece. Patrons of his lines have liked and disliked him in rapid alternation, for it was his point to have his way, not only where his road should run, but where his patrons should settle. This was part of his economic policy. He carried out a singular regularity in the location of branch lines, giving a minimum of short lines on which light trains were unavoidable. The principal text of his railway gospel was low grades, heavy power, large capacity cars, and big train loads on the main lines, and he began to preach this at a time when these things were held as visionary by most railroad men.

In contrast with the late E. H. Harriman, who outdid him in the extent of railway ownership, Mr. Hill was not only the financial head, but the practical head, of his great railway system. He was the chief promoter and president of the Northern Securities company, organized with a purpose to bring the Northern Pacific and Great Northern under one ownership, to which such opposition developed that a suit was brought in the United States circuit court, which decided that the acquisition was an illegal combination — affirmed in March 1904 by the United States supreme court.
